HANGS UP APRON . . . Grocer George Colburn, who has operated his grocery store at Portola and Sartori for more than 30 years, hung up his apron this week and vowed to "take it easy."

Grocer for 30 Years Buys First Sack of Groceries from Market

George Colburn took a sack of groceries home from the corner market at Portola and Sartori yesterday, and for the first time in more than 30 years, he had to put down cash on the line to get them.

Colburn, who lives at 640 Sartori Ave., had just sold the store which he operated for 30 years to Guy Ogelvie of Oakland. A member of the Torrance Lions Club and the Torrance Masonic Lodge, Colburn took over operation of the neighborhood grocery on Feb. 2, 1924, when he brought his family out here from Oil City, Pa. The retiring grocer has been in the business for more than 45 years. He worked for A & P in Pennsylvania for 15 years before coming to Torrance.

"I spent three years once working for a street car company between grocery jobs," Colburn reported.

Lived in Store When he first opened the grocery here, he and his family lived in the back of the building, he said. As the grocery business grew, it forced them out of their living quarters and he purchased their present home across the street from the store.

The Colburn's two children still live in Torrance. Their son, Richard, lives at 1820 Andreo and is employed at the National Supply Co. Their daughter, Ruth Neal, lives at 646 Sartori.

No Vacation "We haven't had a vacation together for all of that 30 years," Colburn said when talking of his retirement. He indicated that he and Mrs. Colburn may take a trip next year.

In the meantime, he says, he will just putter around home and look after some property he has in the area. And, he'll probably make frequent trips to the corner grocery for a while.

Baptists Begin 3 New Classes

New Sunday School classes for men, women, and young married couples, are now being formed at the South Bay Baptist Church, according to Rev. George F. Cain.

The groups will meet each Sunday, he said, in addition to other classes now held.

"God's Last Call" will be Rev. Cain's sermon topic at 11 a.m. Sunday, while he will speak on "Stones of Hindering" at the evening services. At this service, baptism will be performed.

The Millie Kreps Circle will be host to the Women's Missionary Fellowship on Monday evening at 7:30, with Mrs. Naomi Nettleton as chairman.

Women are asked to bring their scissors and a sack lunch for the Women's Missionary Fellowship white cross work day, Thursday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the home of Mrs. George Shockey, 102 N. Prospect, in Redondo Beach.
